Beyond the Borders

INTERNATIONAL STUDY OPPORTUNITIES FROM
PENN STATE’S COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURAL SCIENCES

Go global. In the College of Ag Sciences, we help prepare our graduates to play a role in global society by providing a wide range of international programs geared specifically toward agriculture. Whether you spend a whole semester away, travel with your professor and classmates from one of your courses, or participate in a summer program, studying abroad gives breadth and depth to your personal and intellectual experiences. With an array of international experiences geared to your course of study, a world of possibilities lie ahead. Where will your education take you?

Beyond the Borders

In the College of Ag Sciences, we offer courses with international embedded experiences. Take a course on campus focused on global issues throughout the semester, then travel abroad with your class to put your knowledge into practice. International embedded experiences can be one to five weeks long and take place either over spring break or at the end of the semester. Additionally, we can help you find international internship opportunities.

Semester Study-Abroad Opportunities
Study abroad just about anywhere in the world! More than 179 possible destinations are available during fall, spring, and summer semesters.

International Agriculture Minor
Participate in a study-abroad program to earn credits toward the International Agriculture minor, whether you’re studying abroad for an entire semester or as part of an embedded course.

International Association of Students in Agriculture and Related Sciences (IAAS)
The Penn State chapter of the International Association of Students in Agricultural and Related Sciences promotes the exchange of experience, knowledge, and ideas among students in the fields of agriculture and related sciences all over the world. The club focuses on service learning and actively raises funds for various global causes.
