

There is a lot of talk these days about a 'green economy' and 'going green'. For most people and businesses, that means finding ways to be environmentally responsible. Forest contractors have a unique position when it comes to such issues, because they are the ones working in the middle of the natural environment that others talk so much about protecting.

Logging contractors are stewards of the forest, implementing actions to sustain the health of natural environments and harvesting renewable resources at the same time.

These contractors need a good equipment dealer in their corner.

A good dealer does more than simply sell and service equipment – a dealer must partner with you to help you understand new technologies and products. A good dealer has an outstanding understanding of industry demands and is there to provide solutions to customer problems

Foster F. Wineland, Inc. is an award winning John Deere dealer providing advanced products and services for the forestry and construction industry. Since it was founded in 1947, the company has experienced continuous growth, through integrity, quality, and commitment, spreading its area of business across the entire state of Pennsylvania.
